PULLED TWENTY-SEVEN TEETH.

A Dentist's Call Results in Quite a Business Venture.

A Sunday or two ago one of our popular dentists had quite a picnic in the exercise of his profession, says an exchange. A suffering citizen said to his wife, as she started for church: "If you meet Dr. —, send him over." She did happen to meet him, and the man of forceps was soon with the suffering citizen, whose courage fell to zero on seeing him.

"Fact was he didn't think his wife would meet the doctor, and if the latter would accept payment for his trouble he would be glad to have him go away without torturing an unwilling victim."

"Let's see the offender," said the dentist, and then, following up the advantage, he soon had five grinders where they would do no more aching.
Suffering citizen was then a happy man, and desiring to also make happy a neighbor whom he knew was afraid of a dentist he invited Mr. P. into the drawing room, and after some coaxing out came twelve stings to make way for a set.

Then the neighbor, in his great sense of relief, called in his wife, who yielded seven more to the harvest.
By this time the man afraid of a dentist, who had had out twelve, concluded it was just fun and sat down for a pull of three more. Then the doctor was out of business and counted up twenty-seven samples of jaw misery as the result of his friendly call.

FELT HER BROTHER'S DEATH.

Curious Circumstances Which Indicated Mental Telepathy.

A curious circumstance that may be looked upon as a confirmation of the doctrine of mental telepathy took place recently in a family of importance in the history of the State. This family numbers among its members a lady and her twin brother, a young man who for the past few years has been in business in New Zealand, but who has been expected home on a visit to his sister, says a New Orleans letter.

One evening lately the lady was sitting surrounded by friends when all at once she gave a piercing cry, and placing her hand to her side fell fainting to the floor. On reviving she declared that she had been suddenly stabbed just above the heart and under the left arm, indicating the spots. She was assured that she was laboring under the purest imagination, but was hard to convince that this was the case, so plainly had she felt the knife enter the body.

That night a little daughter was born to her, and the child was found to be marked on the places indicated by the mother as the wounds she had imagined.
The marks on the child were found to be the exact size of old knife wounds. The next day a cablegram was received from friends of the twin brother in New Zealand, informing his sister that he had been stabbed to death by a native in a quarrel, and the date given of the young man's death was that of the night when the sister had felt the pang of a knife entering her own body.

She prevailed on her husband to inquire by cable where her brother's mur-derer had struck him, and to complete the coincidence learned that he had been stabbed twice, once above the heart and again under the left arm. She is convinced that through her affinity with her brother she felt his death even as he received it.

Nature Does Very Well.
(From the New York Weekly.)

Philosopher—People talk about the wise provisions of nature, and yet no sooner does man become a brain worker than he loses his teeth.
His Wife—Goodness me! Nature knows that when people begin to use their brains they will have some enough to go to the dentist's.

He Might Live Too Long.
(From New York Weekly.)

Old Hardcash—Yes, Miss Youngthing has given me some encouragement; at least she hasn't refused me. She says she first wishes to see my family Bible.
I presume she wants to make sure that I am no older than I say.
Friend—That villain in your new play is "Cot? Then what can she want?"
"She wants to see if you come of a long-lived family."
